

Music Blurb

The children have learnt the British National Anthem, to perform at certain events during the year - such as Remembrance Day. Every Friday, children also attend a singing assembly. During this assembly, the children are taught about a range of historical periods, genres, styles and traditions, including the works of great British composers and musicians. We also look at the multi-cultural influences other countries have had on British music, and the influences British composers have had on other musicians.